The Booklist Project

Focus: Culture-Specific Booklist
Puerto Rican Culture
Developed by: Kelly Bairos-Pereira
Fall, 2010
Puerto Rican Themed Books
For Ages 8-12

Kelly Bairos Pereira
M.Ed. Teaching English as a Second Language
Book List

   The book Yagua Days is about a boy living in New York who spends time at his parents’ bodega or Spanish market. One day he is saddened by the rain but is consoled quickly when he finds out he will be traveling to Puerto Rico with his parents to visit relatives. While in Puerto Rico he realizes that fruits are not grown in trucks as he had been told in New York but rather in plantations, like the ones his family owns. He also discovers the beauty and excitement of a Yagua Day when he is taken on an adventure involving a mountainside, a palm frond and the rain.

   In this book there are many Spanish words but to help with pronunciation and meaning, you will find a Spanish word list in the back of the book. This book is part of the Reading Rainbow Series.

   This book is appropriate for grades 3-5 or ages 8-11.

   The WIDA reading level is High Developing.

   This book is about two gods, Yukayu and Huracan, and their power over the indigenous people of Puerto Rico known as the Tainos. Yukayu is highly worshipped for all of the good he does while Huracan, whose name lead to the word hurricane, is evil and jealous. See how the

This book is available in Spanish; its title translates to:

Por que soplan los vientos salvajes

This book is appropriate for grades 3-5 or ages 8-11, it could also serve middle school aged children.

The WIDA reading level is Developing/Expanding.

The book Sonia Sotomayor: A judge grows in the Bronx is a biography of Sonia Sotomayor, the first Puerto Rican woman to become a Supreme Court justice. It is the story of her upbringing in the South Bronx of New York, where she lived with her mother and brother. Her family was originally from Puerto Rico and her mother held on to her traditions and culture very strongly passing on the values of hard work, determination, and perseverance. This story uses a metaphor that compares human lives to flowers; both need love and attention to grow and prosper. It is a great story told for children, an inspiration to all who feel they want to become someone.

This is a bilingual book, aimed at children ages 4-8 or grades 3-5 for independent readers.

The WIDA reading level for this book would be Expanding.
Other teacher resources include discussion questions and follow-up activities for guided reading at the following website:

This website is about the Supreme Court; it even includes a You Tube clip of Sonia Sotomayor’s speech after being sworn into her new office.

http://www.squidoo.com/supreme-court-nominee#module61461592

A biography of Sonia Sotomayor can be found on Wikipedia.com.

Juan Bobo translated into English means silly John or foolish John. This story is about a boy named Juan who wants to help his mother but no matter what he does, he can’t do anything right. This book was originally written in Spanish and has been translated and retold many times. In the English version of this book, there are many Spanish words or short phrases. To help with pronunciation and meaning a glossary can be found in the back of the book. This is a cute story with a happy ending; it will even make you laugh. This book is intended for ages 4-9, grades 3-5, maybe even earlier depending on child’s reading level.

The WIDA reading level for this book is Beginning/Developing.

This book is available in Spanish and won the 2002 Pura Belpré Honor Book Award for its illustrations and the ALA Notable Children’s Book Award.
Another resource that teachers may find helpful can be located on www.marisamontes.com, where the author tells about herself and her stories.

This story is about a girl named Lilly who moves from Puerto Rico to America, leaving behind her home, her friends and everything she knows. Meanwhile in America, a girl named Milly has just moved into a new neighborhood where she knows no one. Both girls meet while facing the challenges of having to adjust to a new place, new school and new people. Needless to say Lilly and Milly will become friends. This is a short chapter book sure to grab the attention of young girls, especially those who can relate to moving to a new city.

This book is for ages 8-12, or grades 3-5.

The WIDA reading level is Bridging.

A helpful website that includes follow-up activities for children and also a teacher’s corner still under development is:

http://www.lillyandmilly.com

Lilly and Milly are on facebook too!

   This book is about two boys who lose their parents in a car accident and have to leave Puerto Rico to live with an aunt in California. While there the youngest boy has an imaginary friend and his older brother Javi believes this friend is evil, strange things begin to happen in this story that have both boys scared and wondering what wicked thing must be in the woods. This is a mystery book.

   This book is intended for ages 8-12 or grades 3-6.

   The WIDA reading level is Reaching.

   This book is a Junior Library Guild Selection.

   Another resource that teachers may find helpful can be located on www.marisamontes.com, where the author tells about herself and her stories.

   This is a biography of a famous baseball player named Roberto Clemente, who made it into the Hall of Fame. He grew up in Puerto Rico before he played for a major league team; the Pittsburg Pirates. He was known as a great baseball player but also a great man. He died tragically in the 70’s in a plane but people remember him for the man he was on and off the field. This is an inspirational story for all baseball fans.

   This book is intended for ages 9-12 or grades 4-6.

   The WIDA level for this book is Expanding/Bridging.
Other resources include the online encyclopedia, Wikipedia, for a biography of Roberto Clemente. For another biography, one that compares R. Clemente to other major league players, see: http://www.prwbooks.com/pride_of_puerto_rico_the_life_of_roberto_clemente_5414.htm

This book is on google books, for a preview go to:

There is a traveling exhibit at the Smithsonian Museum that includes Roberto Clemente, to view details:

http://www.sites.si.edu/exhibitions/exhibits/roberto_clemente/main.htm

This book is about a 13 year old, Puerto Rican boy who goes to Maine for the summer with his mom and stepfather. He hates it there and decides he is going to work on a lobster boat with a tough old man to make money to return to Connecticut. He learns a lot that summer.

This book is intended for ages 9-11 or grades 4-6.

The WIDA reading level for this book is Bridging/Reaching.

This book shares with its readers the importance and tradition of oral history in the Puerto Rican culture. It is a narrative told about a woman who was made to leave her native island to seek better opportunities in America. She tells of her struggles with this and her love of Puerto Rico. This book is written in Spanish.

This book is intended for grades 3-5.

The WIDA reading level for this book seems to be Developing.

This story is about a boy who used to live in Puerto Rico and who is not fluent in Spanish but who remembers something about his native island. He meets a woman who teaches him about cultural pride. This book is written in Spanish.

This book is intended for grades 3-5.

The WIDA reading level for this book seems to be Developing.
Other Teacher References

www.newhorizons.org

by Jennifer Johnson Higgins

This website includes evaluation tools for urban educators, including a checklist of things to watch out for when choosing multicultural literature.

www.elboricua.com

This is a monthly online, cultural, and bilingual publication for Puerto Ricans and those who want to share in their culture. It includes books written and illustrated by Puerto Ricans for all ages.

Other websites to learn about the Puerto Rican culture go to the following sites:

www.topuertorico.org/culture

www.everyculture.com/No-Sa/Puerto-Rico.html

www.puertorico.com/culture

www.prfdance.org

www.iprac.org
The Booklist Project
A Project of the
M.Ed. in TESL Program,

Feinstein School of Education and Human Development
Rhode Island College

For Further Information, Contact:
Nancy Cloud, Ed.D., Director
ncloud@ric.edu
Rhode Island College
600 Mt. Pleasant Avenue
Providence, RI 02908