Poverty and Strife

- It is important to note that population is mainly static or in decline
- 61% of total population lives in urban areas
- 15.3% Unemployment Rate (2012 est.)
- 18% Below Poverty Line (2006 data)
- Economic Strife as Country has high debt
- Racial Strife: The country is mostly homogenous Mediterranean European whites, however, there is no “racial data” kept by the government.
Ethnic Racial Strife Continued

- In the urban areas of Portugal there are immigrants mainly from Africa, Brazil, and Eastern Europe.
- In 2008 4.1% of resident population were immigrants.
- When there was a sharp increase in immigration there was also a dramatic change in the nature of schooling in urban districts.
- It is important to note that racial strife is not a major factor in emigration. (Economic issues are)
Public schooling is available as well as private and religious institutions.

Public schooling from early childhood programs to higher education is partially funded by and overlooked by Portugal’s Ministry of Education and Science (PMES). They also monitor private institutions.

School is compulsory until the age of 15 at which point “dropping out” is an option.

102% of children from ages 5-14 are enrolled in some schooling.

85% of 4-year-olds participate in early childhood programs.
Educational Opportunities

- Teacher Performance Appraisal occurs and is mandated by the PMES and has been negotiated with teacher unions.

- Teachers must achieve the equivalent of a Master’s Degree

- The core academic areas:
  - Portuguese (Language & Literature)
  - History and Geography
  - English
  - Physical Education
  - Mathematics & Science
  - (Offerings of other subjects vary)
Educational Opportunities

- Student to Teacher Ratio: 10.9:1 (Primary) 7.5:1 (Secondary)
- Classrooms are “western” style with desks - many grouped together in social constructive ideology, but many upper levels are only paired or single file
- Compulsory instruction time for students:
  - Primary ~ 865 hours = Teaching time
  - Lower secondary ~ 859 hours
  - Upper secondary ~ 908 hours

Educational Opportunities

- Official Language Policy: Portuguese is used in all government settings

- Grade Level Configurations:
  - Early Childhood Programs
  - Primary: Grades 1-4 (First Cycle)
  - Lower Secondary: Grades 5&6 (Second Cycle)
  - Upper Secondary: Grades 7-9 (Third Cycle)
  - Post-Secondary
  - Tertiary
Educational Opportunities

- All students are mandated to go to school until the age of 15
- Much data shows that Low SES students are underperforming even in a mostly homogenous rural setting.
- School curriculum differs on school by school basis. Many urban schools focus on social-emotional needs and technology while some rural schools still include much agricultural education.
Possible Immigrant Attitudes

- Due to the large number of visitations and permanent returns to Portugal, there are much favorable views of America among Portuguese immigrants.
- United States has provided opportunity in the past for Portuguese immigrants.
- Portugal has a mainly positive view of the USA. 45% of sample views USA in positive light.
Immigration Trends

- 1,173,691 people of Portuguese ethnic origin living in the United States
- The largest settlements are southern Massachusetts and Rhode Island as well as pockets in southern California and New Jersey
- Assimilation: Many people of Portuguese decent have spread along the eastern coast and in doing so have ventured further from their heritage.
- “Settlements” in southern New England, New Jersey, and California maintain heritage with feasts and community organizations
It used to be that Portuguese immigrant families valued work and family commitment over education and independence, but modern immigrants favor education (due to the same cultural shift in Portugal) and family.

Religion tends to be Roman Catholic, though many immigrants may convert to another Christian religion once in the US.

4 core cultural values: respect, honor, good faith, and trust.

Family systems usually patriarchal, but mothers act as facilitators and negotiators.

Eldest son usually groomed for family leadership.

Daughters tend to partake in and be more responsible for household duties.
